

Infants

Welcome Back! We are so excited to see everyone back from winter break. Last month we wished our friends Olivia and Nolan the best of luck as they transitioned to toddlers. We also celebrated our friend My'Chon's first birthday. For the month of December, we talked about the different roles people do around our community. During our theme last month our infants really enjoyed reading a book called If I were a doctor. Not only did we talk about the important roles around our community, we spent some time talking about families and some of the traditions we do around this time of year. We even made a special gift for the parents.

For the month of January, we will be exploring all things, Winter. We've had such a warm winter thus far; we are slightly missing snow and hope to see it soon. If we continue to have a mild winter, we will be making our own snow by using flour and baby oil. We will also be doing a couple different activities related to ice. One of the activities that we will be doing is giving the children their own bowl of ice and have them work on their fine motor skills by using a dropper to drop watercolor paint on it. The infants will do a wide range of sensory activities to work on their fine motor skills along with their scooping and pouring skills by trying to scoop up snowflakes from the water table.

Not only will we be doing a wide variety of sensory activities, we will also be doing some fun art activities to create our own little winter wonderland. We will be making our own snowman and doing some tape resistant snowflake art. In addition, we will also make our own winter storm by free painting with a couple different colors of paint. We will round off our winter theme by talking about arctic animals.

This month we would like to welcome baby Emma (Kayla) and baby Hudson (Larissa) to the infant room.

We would like to wish Rylie the best as she transitions to toddlers.
